Good thought out idea guys. I like that it's open source.

I very much liked your problem solving approach to getting data.

One thing missing was a more thorough validation of your approach (a shame to only show one week).

Code: 75

Your code is adequate for what you were hoping to do. When/if you 'go global' there are various skills you would need to learn (I'd recommend Django).

Delivery: 75

Really good delivery. Great start to the presentation to ask the audience questions: well done.

I also liked the self depreciating humour. Note however that this might not always be the case: it's important to know your audience. In this case you knew your audience and it went down well I'm just offering this as feedback/advice for your next presentation.

Visual Aids: 75

Good use of visual aids.

Creativity: 80

Great idea.

General comments

Well done on this guys. I think you could use more thorough statistical methods in the future (although you have perhaps not learnt them yet).
